

. . breaking news . . . breaking news . . . breaking news . . . breaking news . .

UT-System Now Investigating Alleged UT-T Corruption

HATTIESBURG – According to information received by USMNEWS.net, the University of Texas System’s chancellor, Francisco Cigarroa, is now aware of the chaos at the University of Texas at Tyler. Not only that, sources indicate that an investigation of the alleged corruption at UT-T is now underway.

Cigarroa

Cigarroa has been described to USMNEWS.net as “a good man,” a characterization sources say is half the battle in any attempt to beat back university administrators who have gone off the proverbial rails. Now that this stage in the situation at Tyler has been reached, look for future reports that perhaps provide some of the findings in the investigation of UT-T administrators.