As you can see, a visitor to usmnews recently reviewed reports about Sami Dakhli, possibly looking into his background. Or, maybe it was Sami, himself.

If that's you Sami, are you behaving yourself? If it's not Sami, read on.

"Warning" should be tattooed on Dakhli's forehead, followed by, "If Sami doesn't like what you have to say, he's intolerant and he may conspire behind your back to bushwhack you and punish you for your speech."

In an academic environment where open and free discussion is prized, Sami prefers a "Gulag" approach to people he disagrees with. Rather than discussing problems he has with people he disagrees with, he prefers to secretly organize like-minded intolerant miscreants to punish "Dakhli forbidden speech."

Watch out for this guy. And, especially watch your back.

In previous usmnews.net reports, authors surmised Dakhli employed bushwhack to curry favor of influential colleagues and administrators to gain tenure when it was questionable whether he might satisfy tenure standards on the basis of merit. See the following reports.
