Dear usmnews.net,

I read your story on the Samsung Galaxy Tab. Why would anyone make a commitment to the Tab when it is not going to be around much longer? I picked up a HP TouchPad for a bargain basement price. I expect the Tab to be outdated soon. Second, why provide them to select classes of students when some of them are not comfortable using this kind of technology. Third, the Tab like the IPAD is extremely fragile and hard to repair. Students throw their laptops into back packs. Fourth, they will increase the number of thefts on campus. Fifth, the Tab like the IPAD requires that a credit card be on file before any apps, music, etc. can be ordered and downloaded. This was a very bad decision.
