

Dear usmnews.net

Dear usmnews.net,

You are apparently too modest to draw a contrast between your former colleagues' skills as teachers and your own. However, I hope you are not too modest to publish my email to you. When I checked your RateMyProfessors review, you were consistently rated Good -- the highest score permitted. Your overall rating was 4.8 (out of 5) as compared to Mary Anderson's 1.5. Nobody, and most particularly your students, thought you were an easy teacher who gave away grades. Unfortunately, I couldn't copy the page, but here is the link. But, here are some of the comments, excellent professor, teaches what is practical while leaving the impractical alone.

smart guy, learned a lot

great teacher

Cares about students. Very Personable very good teacher - thoroughly explains difficult material

Everyone knew you were a great teacher who was devoted to your students. Yet, a group of mean spirited people lied to push you out of the classroom. Those of us who knew you and the situation -- even if we weren't friends -- were disgusted by how you were treated. Perhaps if some of us had the courage to stand up and defend you, you would still be in class where you belong.

Sign me, Glad I'm at another University