Dear usmnews.net,

The question many of [Lee] Gore's old "friends" at Southern Miss are asking is why is Gore giving up his job [as General Counsel] at UWF, when he [or at least UWF on his behalf], claims to have passed the Florida Bar Exam? Passing the bar exam would seem to be the hardest part of getting licensed [to practice of law] in any state. So, if Gore actually passed [the bar exam], why didn't he get sworn in [with others who passed the bar exam at the same time]? The Florida Bar had to have a reason NOT to swear Gore into the practice of law. The talk is that the reason is likely personal [what the bar associations refer to a character and fitness] and it is not good.
