

Dear Santa

Dear Santa:

I have been so good this year that I can hardly believe it. I really do not know what to ask for because I have been given so much this year. I have this great job where I walk around and talk to everyone and get paid for it. But even better, I was given a new job that I get to do that and get even more money for it so work is good. At home, I get to see my son grow up; I am happy those fears were wrong. No worries as long as “you know who” has to stay away from us.

Santa, please keep people paying me more than I am worth and keep hidden that I am promoted above my abilities. You know I hate research and am not any good at it; this way I do not have to do any. I hardly even have to teach anymore either; I love being an administrator! If only I did not have to be here from about 8:30 to 4:30. Oh well.

Please say “hello” to Mrs. Claus for me. Merry Christmas!

Gwen
