

Focus Now Turning to ‘Scary Prof’ #3

His/Her Name Remains a Mystery, but Details are Leaking Out

With The Student Printz's release of information on USM political science professor Kate Greene's two-week suspension from teaching due to an in-class altercation with one of her students, the USM community has now learned more about two of the professors who have served suspensions from the institution out of fears of danger. Now that the initial effect of the Greene story is in the rearview mirror, focus is turning to so-called “scary prof” number three. New information is beginning to leak about this yet-to-be-named USM professor, with one bit coming from an “Anonymous” poster to The Student Printz Online. The statement from “Anonymous” is inserted below:

What about the professor who has been on administrative leave since the first of November 2010 for a ridiculous student accusation? It still hasn't been resolved! Talk about lack of due process. University administrators have made a serious error in this case. This professor has had a positive influence on so many students. Remove the jerks that should be removed not the good professors.

According to “Anonymous,” there is a USM professor “who has been on administrative leave since the first of November 2010.” This suspension is due to “a ridiculous student accusation,” at least according to “Anonymous.” If the TSPO comments are accurate, the Martha Saunders administration has “made a serious error in this case.” Sources tell USMNEWS.net that, if accurate, this particular professor may be one of the two ‘scary profs’ who has retained legal counsel, thus potentially putting Saunders and other USM administrators in legal jeopardy.

Interestingly, this particular poster adds that USM officials should “[r]emove the jerks that should be removed not the good professors.” This sentiment echoes those of Myesha Arrington, who also commented on the Kate Greene suspension at TSPO. The portion of Arrington's post that is relevant to this report is inserted below:

. . . It is more professors on this campus that should be suspended for way worse situations and haven't. . . .

This statement closely mirrors that from “Anonymous,” indicating that there are some really bad actors among the USM faculty ranks. Unfortunately for USM students and other USM constituents, none of these faculty seem to be finding themselves listed among the targets of what sources are referring to as the downward mobbing campaign of the Saunders administration.
