Discussions about the Harold Doty's "Conversations with Susan" story is making the rounds. The latest word is that the Dotys have not only opened up their search to the "Great White North," copies of his resume can now be found at institutions in Europe. At some point they're going to have to consider landing a CEE Directorship for Susan that allows Harold to trail in as an adjunct instructor of entrepreneurship.

Here's one for the Wow!-mometer: It is being reported that associate professor of economics, Sami Dakhli, has remarked on more than one occasion that anyone who publishes in outlets as atrociously bad as those that professor of economics, Farhang Niroomand, often publishes in should be summarily fired. Sweeeeet! Of course, there isn't a lot of concurrence around Greene Hall with Dakhli's opinion, given the low quality of so much on the CoB's publication list.

GH Chatter is a series at USMNEWS that provides a glimpse at what CoB students, and sometimes CoB faculty, are discussing throughout the corridors of Joseph Greene Hall and beyond.
