

Guest Editorial

Taking a Stand?

On June 25, 2015, the University of Southern Mississippi released a peculiarly mealy mouthed statement of position concerning the current state flag. “Our commitment to inclusion compels us to recognize that the current state flag does not represent the spirit of all Mississippians , and as such should continue to be discussed in an educated and civil manner.”

So, Dr. Bennett, what is the University’s position on the current state flag? Should it go? Stay? What?