

Is Fedora just not a party hat for Martha?

In Aunt Martha's blog, she mentions going to New Orleans for the game on the 19th and on the 23rd she does mention the exciting win for Southern Miss, including a couple of photos. The second photo is of arms holding the giant trophy for the win. On the cover of the Hattiesburg American, Coach Fedora is shown holding that trophy; later in the paper are shots of players holding it as well. Martha does not mention Coach Fedora at all. That cannot be an accident. We realize 7-6 is not an impressive record, but they fought back from those 6 losses to make the Bowl, and won the game when no one outside of loyal Southern Miss supporters came them a chance. With a young team and all new coaches and systems, that is an impressive start for the Fedora era. What's wrong, Martha? You gave much more time and effort to the walks and cook-offs. Support your people before you lose them.
