Dear usmnews,

Thank you for running the article about Judson Edwards becoming the new Dean at Troy. He will do a great job. The story reminded people, or maybe let them know, how he was treated by Farhang Niroomand. [Harold] Doty and Niroomand said that the COB could not be reaccredited if economic development remained in the college. Well, they got rid of Judson and the program and still did not reaccredited. Meanwhile, Judson got a great big new job. This story teaches us that it was the presence of Doty and Niroomand, not the ED program, that doomed the COB's reaccreditation.

Dear USMNEWS.net:

The new business building is not going to be next to the [Trent] Lott Center. That proposal was knocked down recently. I think they might argue now that private donors want it there, and they may try to play tough with the campus planners on it. Look for this.
