

Letters to the Editor

Dear USM News,

What is the legal impact of this [federal court] decision, where the judge rules insufficient damage, on a future decision such as dismissal where the impact would result in severe monetary damages? Does this put the university in a situation where they are locked into the status quo or retreat?

<name withheld>

Note: The reader is referring to a federal court's ruling on an employment case involving the CoB. For more on it, see the recent installment in the GH Chatter series.

Dear USMNews,

It's time the COB voted on and passed a change in the core curriculum that allows the "international" course in each discipline to be eligible to count toward a student's core credits. The days when only international economics fulfilled this requirement should have been over the day Charlie Sawyer left the college.

<name withheld>