

Martha Saunders Wants to be President

As usmnews.net's ticker announced on March 6, 2014, Martha Saunders is a finalist for the job of president at the College of Charleston. Already, visitors from the College of Charleston are looking for information about their want-to-be president.

Over the next few days, usmnews.net will be re-publishing a selection of reports concerning Saunders' disastrous presidency at the University of Southern Mississippi. However, first let's go back to the days when the Mississippi IHL abruptly dumped Martha Saunders as President while they looked for a new one. While the termination was publicly couched as a "resignation," there is no doubt that Saunders was fired. We don't know what she did, although there was enough turmoil and scandal at Southern Miss to justify the termination many times over. For details go to the usmnews.net custom Google™ search box and take a look.

Saunders words at the public announcement included, "I'm just tired. It's a tired that I've never felt before." But low and behold, she immediately went looking for another job as Provost at the University of West Florida. Less than two years after leaving Southern Miss and after barely a year at UWF, she now wants to be your -- College of Charleston -- president.

Now that's a scary thought.
