

Sayre Saves the Day; von Herrmann in Negative Light

New Information on CoAL-ECO's Staffing Problems

Based on recent updates to the USM fall 2010 schedule guide from the USM registrar, it seems that the CoAL has finally resolved its CoAL-ECO staffing problems for fall semester 2010. The final opening, an honors section of ECO 101, will be covered by Edward Sayre, an assistant professor of international development in USM's CoAL. In selecting Sayre for the remaining course, CoAL dean Denise von Herrmann appears to have digested USMNEWS.net readers' tips about the healthy number of "economists" who remain at USM even after the elimination of all CoB economics programs and faculty. Still, sources say that having to be told about the qualifications of faculty in her own college, especially after having made erroneous comments to The Hattiesburg American, shines a negative light on von Herrmann.

Edward Sayre

Denise von Herrmann

Interestingly, reports in the USMNEWS.net Archives indicate that Sayre once faced two job offers from USM – one from von Herrmann's international development department, and the other from George Carter's EFIB. Obviously, he chose the former, which sources say was yet another bring in the failure wall built by Carter. Lastly, schedule updates from the USM registrar also reveal that Daniel Monchuk's section of ECO 450 has been cancelled, reducing Monchuk's fall 2010 load from 4 courses and 3 preps to 3 courses and 2 preps. Thus, it appears as though von Herrmann followed the advice of USMNEWS.net's sources, who suggested that the course be eliminated and Monchuk's load consolidated.
