

Skip gets another administrative assistant

As reported on usmnews.net, Melissa McIntyre has departed the confines of the Skip Hughes-led School of Accounting for a better position on campus. Usmnews.net has learned that Skip tried to talk Lisa Mader, BEDS secretary, into coming down to Accounting but she wanted to think about it and that did not sit well with Skip. Skip then acquired Marie Baker, formerly an advisor in Undergraduate Services (“Room 110” for the cognoscenti), to be, apparently, both the departmental secretary and point woman for student advising in Accounting. Since personnel cuts are surely coming next year – if not sooner – in Undergraduate Services, this is a good move for Ms. Baker. Ms. Baker is reportedly well-liked in the JAG so she should be able to get some help learning the ropes. Usmnews.net wishes her all the best in trying to deal with Skip and the rest of the members of the first and second floor gangs.
