Away Goes Carr

An Investigative Report on CoB Faculty Research Credentials

With the close of fall semester 2008 comes the end of CoB associate professor of management Jon Carr's career at USM. In Jan-09 Carr will become an assistant professor of management at Texas Christian University. With Carr will go the research portfolio he has put together since coming to USM several years ago. That portfolio is presented in Table 1 below:

With three A-level journal publications (Journal of Management [2] and Journal of Business Research) and one A+ journal publication (Academy of Management Journal), Carr's research record is one of the best, if not the best, in the CoB over the past few years. As such, there will be no replacing Carr as far as the CoB's 2012 AACSB reaccreditation efforts are concerned. With all of the faculty losses that have occurred since 2003, new CoB dean Lance Nail is going to have to implement one of the better "reward systems" known to academia if he hopes to provide stability and improvement in USM's b-school.
