

The Face of CoB-GC Continues to Change

More New Faculty Sign Up for Duty

The faculty roster down at the CoB's Gulf Coast operation continues to twist and turn, as more new faculty are set to join in the coming weeks. The list now includes Greg Bradley, who is classified as a visiting assistant professor of management by USM-GC officials. According to sources, Bradley is co-owner of Decision Scientific in Gulfport, an applied research and management consulting firm. Like Jamyne Foster and Michael Gade, Bradley's teaching duties begin in January of 2009.

Interestingly, Bradley is slated to teach two sections of marketing at the CoB-H site during the spring of 2009. These are:

- MKT 400, MKT in E-commerce, 2:25pm-3:40pm, T and R
- MKT 495, International Mkt, 1:00pm-2:15pm, T and R

Another new faculty member set to engage CoB-GC students in January of 2009 is Yosef Bonaparte, who is classified as an assistant professor of economics by USM-GC officials. Bonaparte (shown below) is a former classmate at the University of Texas of the CoB-H's newly-hired assistant professor of economics Deniz Gevrek.

Yosef Bonaparte

Like Bradley and the others, Bonaparte's teaching duties begin in January of 2009, however they are confined to CoB-GC locales. Bonaparte's teaching duties are:

- BA 301, Mgr Statistics I, 2:00pm-3:15pm, M and W
- BA 301, Mgr Statistics I, 6:30pm-9:15pm, W

The information in this report further indicates just how “bottled up” new CoB dean Lance Nail is due to what are being described as a number of “unnecessary last minute hires” made by the former interim administration of Alvin Williams. With a sagging economy, Nail’s opportunity to make a mark on the CoB’s human resources plate may be years away now, and that assumes he sticks around.
