Why do we lose secretaries so often?

Okay everybody, there is going to be somewhat of a delay getting the AACSB folders and dossiers together. Three secretaries resigned earlier this week.

You should talk to them some time, Cynthia. You'd be appalled at some of the things they have to put up with around here.

You don't know what you're talking about, Red. It's the budget situation . . . we can't pay them a competitive amount.

Dr. Nearydom is correct, Cynthia. It's difficult for us to keep up with the law and accounting offices around town in terms of pay.

Cynthia, go ask Lora on the second floor if being required to work on tasks without proper training has anything to do with it.

Red is just joking around, Cynthia. A little staff turnover is simply something we have to deal with at times around here, that's all.

Cynthia, go ask Tawny in the grad programs office if having a college administrator in your face -- cursing at you so close you get hit with spit -- is a joke.

Red, I think I speak for everyone when I say that you are way out of line. Stop bringing up things you know nothing about.

Red's behavior here should be punished, Dr. Treelung. Please see to it that Dean Toady learns of this.
