

"Time is Fleeting" Says Doty's Future not Bright

For those of you not following the weblog over at The Student Printz, you're missing out. A recent installment says that TSP staffers get the brush-back from President Shelby Thames' staff whenever they refer to him as "Mr." instead of "Dr.," which they likely do on occasion just for laughs. Well, on 5 March 2007, the Opinions Editor of The Student Printz posted an entry titled "Time is Fleeting," wherein topics on the minds of TSP editorial staff are listed. A screen containing the first part of that day's entry is inserted below:

As the screen above indicates, TSP editors will be focusing a lot of attention on the presidential search process. At the bottom they also note that they don't believe "... th[e] whole university as a business thing is working out too well." That's an interesting remark, and one that a vast majority of the USM community would likely agree with. Notice the picture that is creeping up into the bottom portion of the screen. What is that? Let's go in for a closer look:

Oh my! -- that is a link to Doty's "the fun money" video on YouTube. So, it appears as though Doty will serve as an example of how not to operate a university or college.

For USM's College of Business, the Dean D. Harold Doty administration is becoming a stain that won't wash out. Soon, more and more USM students will be joining those CoB majors who are visiting USMNEWS.NET in ever increasing numbers. What a sad sight they will all get to see.
