

They Owe It to the World

It is sad to report another shooting on the Virginia Tech campus. However, it is time that the School of Accountancy comes to the assistance of Virginia Tech and other universities. School of Accountancy faculty, including Patricia Munn, Steven Jackson, Gwen Pate, and Mary Anderson, claim they can predict who is dangerous, can snap, and shoot people. This is wonderful! Experienced forensic psychiatrists admit that they cannot make such predictions. Yet these accounting faculty claim they can.

Furthermore, University of Southern Mississippi administrators, including President Martha Saunders, believe the accounting faculty is credible in their predictions. The University of Southern Mississippi could provide a service to universities, communities, and the world in general to provide the expert abilities claimed by these accounting faculty. Southern Miss owes it to the world to offer the services of Munn, Jackson Pate, and Anderson to the world.

And, Dr. Saunders, just think what a wonderful PR opportunity you would have.
