

DEAR USMNEWS.NET

Dear usmnews.net,

Recent reports about Dr. Marvasti's financial woes have been a hot topic around the CoB water cooler. Everyone seems to have the same question. If the move was going to put Marvasti in dire financial straits, why did he leave so precipitously? He had just gotten tenured. Somebody had to teach Econ. Why not him?

It doesn't make sense. The talk is that COAL never intended to absorb the CoB's resident problems and the Econ transfers were told to move along. I don't know, and I would guess that with the exception of the faculty who were involved and admin, nobody will ever really know.

One thing I do know is that with everything else going on around here, the whole situation just stinks.
